Midnight Rodeo is a big draw among locals and visitors to Southwest Missouri. It has been one of the best nightclubs in town for over two decades. Some of its features include a spacious dance floor, unrivaled sound and light system, flat screens and pool tables. Enjoy cocktails and spirits at their three bars, one of which is a 360-degree rotating one, or shoot some pool and catch the live sporting action. This Honky Tonk features the classic inclusion of a mechanical bull, a favorite among patrons.

Blue Room

"Jazz and History"

If you are looking to see how Kansas City appeared back when Charlie Parker roamed the streets, stop by the Blue Room. Although the original Blue Room, where the 'Bird' blew saxophone is long gone, this jazz joint is a fine replica of the 1930's club. Located in the historic 18th & Vine district, it is a bit of a museum, with pictures of greats that cover the walls and relics of Kansas City's jazz era adorn the tables. Live music still gets the place swinging four nights a week. No food is available and smoking is not allowed, but there is a fully stocked bar.
