Beliye Nochi

"Discover the Caucasus Cuisine"

Beliye Nochi (White Nights) focuses on the cuisine of the Caucasus, which is very popular in Sochi. The restaurant is famous for its khinkali dumplings, a staple of Georgian cuisine. There are also traditional dishes like shashlyk or skewered meat, lobio or spicy stewed beans, and satsivi or meat with walnut sauce. The bar also offers local wine and Armenian cognac. The prices at the restaurant are quite reasonable.

Adriano Leonardo

"Pizza, Sushi & More"

Adriano is a popular Sochi pizzeria chain. Almost all of the establishments in the chain have their own additional names, such as "Leonardo," "Venezia," "Sky," or "Fashion." Apart from the pizza and pasta, the restaurants feature sushi, which, as many Russians joke, is the new Russian national food. Even though the Adriano establishments are called "cafes," they have a large drink menu, with a large variety of wines as well as vodka, cognac, rum, tequila, etc. This is pretty typical of Russia. Even if the sign outside says "cafe," it does not mean that this is no place to have dinner or to converse with your friends for hours while having a few drinks.

Santorini

"Souvlaki & More"

Santorini specializes in souvlaki, which is a popular Greek skewered meat dish. In addition to that, the cafe's menu features shawarma, stuffed pitas, sandwiches, burgers, pizzas, pastas, salads, and ice cream. If you want to have a drink, Santorini serves beer and mojitos. Also of note is the blue-and-white design of the place, which is quite pleasing to the eye. Sochi has two Santorini cafes, one in Central Sochi, the other in the Adler District.
