Gran Teatre del Liceu

"Grand Opera House"

Featuring an air of striking regality that can be attributed to its historic dull rose facade, the Gran Teatre del Liceu is a longstanding symbol of Barcelona's prized culture. Perhaps the most important theater in Barcelona, the Gran Teatre del Liceu was built in 1847 as a venue for opera performances. The original building showcased a modern aesthetic designed by architects Miquel Garriga i Roca and Josep Oriol Mestres, and while the theater was rebuilt after a fire in 1994, a handful of cherished artifacts from the first structure remain. The main façade, the Hall of Mirrors, and staircase notably represent the historic Gran Teatre del Liceu as it was originally conceived. As important as ever, the new theater stays true to its roots by staging an exciting program of operas, concerts, and ballets performed by some of the most reputable companies in the world. It even houses a symphony orchestra and choir that perform throughout the year. With 2,292 seats, the Gran Teatre del Liceu is certainly grand, and it has one of the largest opera auditoriums in Europe.

Los Tarantos

"Disco & Flamenco Shows"

The color red dominates the interior of Los Tarantos, paying a humble tribute to the attires of the Flamenco dancers who have graced the stage of this institution since 1963. One of the longest-established and most prestigious flamenco club in town, Los Tarantos has hosted performances by some of the country's most famous singers and bailaoras (flamenco dancers), including Antonio Gades, Manzanita and Fosforito. This is a great place to experience the rich Spanish culture at its best with well crafted drinks keeping patrons in high spirits. The club, albeit intimate, can seat smaller groups with ease; it has impressive acoustics and one can enjoy the show without any hindrance from its every corner.

Fira de Barcelona - Gran Via

"Premier Conventions Venue"

The Fira de Barcelona is one of the largest exhibition spaces in Europe, divided over two locations: Montjuïc and Gran Via. The Gran Via location was designed by Japanese architect Toyo Ito, and is a fine example of conceptual architecture. The six pavilions of this massive venue together comprise an area of 2,40,000 square meters (25,83,338.50 square feet). The convention center alone can accommodate about 5600 visitors, and boasts a flexible, dynamic area of 14000 square meters (150694.7 square feet). The bigger of the two venues, the Fira de Barcelona – Gran Via is buzzing with prominent events throughout the year. See the website for further information.
